

Internet Accessible Resources on Ethics In Psychological Practice

Website of Kenneth Pope, PhD

<http://kspope.com>

Offers great resources, including full-text articles and guides on ethics, malpractice, and professional standards from major psychological journals, the APA ethics code and over 40 other organizations in the areas of therapy, counseling, and forensics, dual relationships, security of clinical records on computers, etc. It provides numerous links to psychology laws and licensing boards in Canada & the U.S, and many more free resources.

American Psychological Association Ethics Office

<http://www.apa.org/ethics>

Presents ethics information and resources relevant to practice of psychology.

Association of State & Provincial Psychology Boards

<http://www.asppb.org>

Offers good sources of information on licensing laws and standards, providing contact information (and links where available) to state and provincial licensing boards.

Firstgov.com

<http://www.firstgov.gov>

Offers resources and links for government regulations and laws for state and local governments and it's searches very quickly review every word of every U.S. government document

National Library of Medicine Government Publications

http://www.nlm.nih.gov/pubs/cbm/hum\_exp.html

Offers an extensive bibliography of books, audiovisuals, and journal article citations on "Ethical Issues in Research Involving Human Participants."

The Office of Research Integrity

<http://ori.hhs.gov>

"Promotes integrity in biomedical and behavioral research" and "monitors institutional investigations of research misconduct and facilitates the responsible conduct of research through educational, preventive, and regulatory activities." Provides numerous resources and three listserves to foster discussion and networking among institutional officials and others interested in preventing research misconduct, teaching the responsible conduct of research, or conducting research on research integrity.